

Hugh Coltman Lyrics

« Living for tomorrow »

Living for tomorrow
Just passing through today
Minutes slipping by you
Hours tick away
x2

You stay,
Looking through your window
through the pain,
Friends don't come a knocking', no more
It's a little shocking, to me
D'you remember when we'd, kill time
Hanging out together, real fine
All those days we spent are, not lost
Look into your mind they, live on Yeah look into your mind

A little you, a little me
A lot of what we both could be
A little love, a little hope
A lot of what you need to cope
A little you, a little me
A lot of what we both could be
A little hope, a little time
's all you need to get by

You try
But you've given up, inside
The little things that come, pass by
And I don't see no sign, of life
Don't see no sign of life

A little you, a little me
A lot of what we both could be
A little love, a little hope
A lot of what you need to cope
A little you, a little me
A lot of what we both could be
A little hope, a little time
's all you need to get by

Living for tomorrow
Just passing through today
Minutes slipping by you
Hours tick away

x2

Chorus till end

Extra verse

Y'say you've got control
You're fine
All things have their place
And time
But' I look in your face
Your eyes
I can see a child and You're hiding

Alone
Shut inside (your) four walls
Alone
The solitude will cheat you
It's true
There ain't no bigger number
Than two
Your mind's playing tricks
On you