

Michelle Willis Lyrics

« Riding the Wave »

Rise in the morning
Wake to sunlight
Trying to ease my mind
'Fore the worry strikes

But it washes over
Come two at a time
Each fear an old friend
I thought id left behind

And they circle round and round
These questions without answer
Like a skip on a broken record
Must pause, refine

My mind, my head,
My pride, my strength, my weakness
I'm seeking solid ground, but till then I'm

Riding the wave (riding the wave)
Change is gonna take
Something brave from you
Oh you are
Feeling the weight (feeling the weight)
Of chasing a dream (don't worry you will)
But you will sail on through

Yeah it's a useless distraction
This worry weaving
If I let it it'll keep on seeping
Stain the dream I'm dreaming / (peace I'm keeping)

To see myself clearly
Doing what I'm made for
This is what I've worked for
I know I'm just

You're riding the wave (riding the wave)
Change is gonna take
Something brave from you
Oh you are
Opening the gate (opening the gate)
To fear and mistakes (don't worry you will)
And you will sail on through